

2024 Sports Sustainability Conference

University of Miami | July 10-12, 2024

The 4th annual Atlantic Coast Conference Sports Sustainability Conference was held July 10-12, 2024, at the University of Miami.

This conference underscores ACC institutions' ongoing commitment to sports sustainability.

It highlights the work of students, sustainability and athletic teams, collegiate faculty and staff, higher education institutions, and community members from across the country. This engagement to integrate sports and sustainability in universities positively impacts the world and its people, during and beyond athletic events.

5

sessions

with topics including developing a winning game plan, stadium sustainability, student leadership and engagement, and communicating sports sustainability.

4

networking

opportunities to meet and learn from 23 peers representing 11 higher education institutions plus guests from private and community organizations.

2

tours

exploring the built environment of the University of Miami and sustainable operations at the Miami Heat's Kaseya Center.

33

universities

and colleges from across the country in attendance, engaging both in person and virtually.

17

speakers

and facilitators led three days of discussion, networking and tours.

The ACC is a national leader in collegiate athletics, academics and sustainability. This conference exemplifies our mission to harness the collective strengths and expertise of collegiate institutions across the country to advance innovative sports sustainability practices.

sustainableacc.com

